Adviser charging options

Adviser charges are an agreement between the bond owners and their financial adviser. However, PIA will apply decency limits for each type of adviser charge, as outlined below.

Initial Adviser Charge	This is a one-off charge taken from the client's payment before investment into the bond. It can be requested as a monetary amount. The maximum adviser charge that can be is 5% of the initial investment payment. The aggregate of all Set-up Adviser Charges and ad hoc Adviser Charges cannot exceed £30,000 in any 12 month period.
Ongoing Adviser Charges	These are regular charges deducted from the bond at the frequency requested (monthly quarterly, half-yearly or annually). They can be requested as a monetary amount or as a percentage of the total bond value (at the time the charge is taken). The maximum ongoing adviser charge that can be facilitated is 1% of the total bond value. The request also needs to tell us what investments to sell if there's insufficient money in the cash account to take the charge. These charges are treated as withdrawals from the bond for the 5% tax-deferred allowance.
Ad hoc Adviser Charge	This is a one-off charge taken from the bond. It can be requested as a monetary amount. The maximum ad hoc adviser charge that can be facilitated is 2% of the total bond value in a 12 month period. The request also needs to tell us what investments to sell if there's insufficient money in the cash account to take the charge. This charge is treated as a withdrawal from the bond for the 5% tax-deferred allowance.
